Change the World: It Just Takes Cents is a student driven, adult mentored initiative empowering youth to focus their energy on how to appropriately “do the right thing.” It was generated in the Jewish community in Denver in an effort to respond to the needs and assist the people of Darfur, and has since developed into a social justice and action curriculum used in various synagogue youth programs. The founder of Change the World..., Sara Kornfeld, has now invited the Episcopal Diocese of Colorado into an interfaith dialogue about the application of this life-giving initiative in our communities and congregations.

Join Catie Greene, Faith Formation Events Coordinator, and members of Change the World... for lunch and discussion on Tuesday, September 23, 2008 from 12-1:30 p.m. in room 200 at St. John’s Cathedral, Denver. We will learn more about this initiative, hear about a suggested interfaith gathering for young people, and share our own thoughts on how the work of Change the World... might support our own work.

Please RSVP by September 16 to Vivian at vivian@coef.org or 303.534.6778 and inform her if you will be attending or not.

Formal letter of invitation to follow in the mail in the next week.
